

General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR)

Sharing of Personal Information

Concordia University Wisconsin-Ann Arbor (CUWAA) is committed to protecting the privacy of students, employees, and other individuals interacting with the University, including the collection and processing of personal data of those individuals who are protected by the European Union's (EU's) General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).

CUWAA may share information with affiliates, third parties with consent, service providers, and to comply with legal requirements and processes. CUWAA ensures that 3rd-party vendors requiring personal information are GDPR compliant.

Protection of Personal Information

The University has put in place reasonable physical, technical, and administrative safeguards designed to prevent unauthorized access to or use of personal information that is collected.

Rights Under GDPR

- Right of access to personal information
- Right of rectification of personal information
- Right to erasure (right to be forgotten) unless legally required to do otherwise
- Right to restriction of processing of personal information unless legally or contractually required to do otherwise
- Right to data portability (request a copy of personal information)
- Right to object to processing of personal information